Casses to Get Recess For Homecoming Work

Classes will be dismissed at 1 p. m. Friday so that students and faculty members will have additional time to prepare for the Homecoming festivities, Dean Leon F. Miller reported.

Dean Miller also pointed out that instructors have been asked not to schedule tests or have major projects due next Thursday or Friday or Monday, Oct. 25.

Two Coeds to Vie for Honors In Homecoming Queen Contest

For the first time in recent MSC history, the student body will have a choice between two candidates, Dorothy Hardyman and Marlene Kelly, for its 1965 Homecoming Queen.

Following a two-day campaign that will begin at 8 a. m. Wednesday and continue until 4 p. m. Thursday, the student body will vote in the Student Lounge in Colden Hall between 8 a. m. and 4 p. m. The queen will be honored that night at the Variety Show. Rules for campaigning procedures have been established by the Student Senate.

Miss Hardyman, a junior math major, is sponsored by the social sororities and fraternities on campus. Her campaign manager is Pat Meyer.

She is a member of the Student Senate and is presently serving on the faculty affairs committee. A member of the Alpha Sigma Alpha sorority, she was chosen the 1965 Tau Kappa Epsilon Sweetheart.

As a sophomore, she served as class vice president. She is presently a girls' resident hall counselor and has been on the Dean's List for two semesters. Miss Hardyman is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hardyman, Storm Lake, Ia.

A junior 'vocational home economics major, Miss Kelly is the 'independent candidate sponsored by the Men's Residence Hall and the Men's Dormitory Council. Her campaign manager is Bob Durrell.

Miss Kelly is a member of the Women's Dorm Council, Cohecon, and the Independent Student Organization. When she was a freshman, she was chosen the Harvest Moon Festival Queen. She was also the first runner-up in the 1964 Miss Maryville Pageant.

Her parents are Mrs. Margaret Anderson, Excelsior Springs, and James V. Kelly, Des Moines, Ia.

Jerry Taylor, president of the Student Senate, has hinted that "different approaches will be used in the queen presentation at the Variety Show, Thursday night."

The queen and her attendant will head the Homecoming Parade Saturday morning on a float provided by the Association of Women Students. She will also reign over the game and the Homecoming Dance.

Senate Institutes New Student Court

As a special project, the Student Senate has created a Student Court, with the student body vice president, Travers Booth, as chairman and four senators as members.

The four Senate members of the court are Judy Miller, Rosanne Bartlett, Bernard Veak Jr., and James Beemer. Two additional members of the court are the vice president of Association of Women Students, Deanne Bower, and the vice president of the Men's Residence Hall, Bob Burrell.

Upon call of the chairman, the court will meet and discuss cases concerning traffic regulations of the campus. It will also make recommendations to the college concerning improvements and changes to the present traffic system.

If a student believes that the decision giver, in his case is unjust, he may appeal to the next higher authority, the Student-Faculty Disciplinary Committee. There are no faculty members on the Student Court.

Show Co-Chairmen Announce Rehearsal

Variety Show co-chairmen Linda Chappell and Nancy Perez have announced that the dress rehearsal for the show will be held at 7 p. m. Wednesday.

Bruce Falk, Essex, Ia., will emcee the show which will be presented at 7 p. m. Thursday and 7:30 p. m. Friday. He was chosen in try-outs before the show committee. The Homecoming Queen will be crowned Thursday night and will be introduced Friday night.

Members of the Variety Show committee are Cindy Darnell, Diana Brown, Roger Ossowski, Ed Locker, and Dean Savage, faculty advisor. The approximately 10 skits will be presented alternately with women's in alphabetical order and men's in reverse order.

All the World's a Stage

Ho! Ho! Shakespeare had a word for it, they say. Ho! "I shall laugh myself to death!" (As You Like It) My name is Ariel. I'm an impish, devil-like character created by Master Shakespeare, and I've been playing my tricks again! This time in the Den. . .

"Zounds but I'm hungry!" wailed a bridge-playing sophomore.

"Famine is in thy cheeks." (Troilus and Cressida) Gee, I wish I knew someone who would get us something to eat." hinted another of the "daughters of the game." (Troilus and Cressida)

"Laugh yourself into stitches." (Twelfth Night) But I still refuse to be the Zeroes' Homecoming queen candidate. "I would not be queen for all the world," (King Henry VIII) retorted the sophomore.

"I'll get you something to eat," promised a freshman. "What do you want?"

"Eye of newt, and toe of frog, wool of bat, and tongue of dog," (Macbeth) suggested the teaser.

"I think I'll have chilli, a pizzaburger, roasted peanuts, and a glass of milk," said one "daughter."

"Eat no onions nor garlic, for we are to utter sweet breath. (A Midsummer Night's Dream) We'll settle for hamburgers, french fries, and milk," said the other.

While the freshman went after the food, one of the girls leaned to the other and whispered, "There is something in the wind." (The Comedy of Errors)

"Do you want a cigarette?" "No, no! I mean, isn't that Joe Bearcat who went to school here last year? You remember, a 'back-friend, a shoulder-clapper?" (The Comedy of Errors)

"Do I remember? Forever and a day!" (As You Like It) Here he comes."

"Splitting the air with noise," (Coriolanus) the 6-8, 230-pound giant yelled a "Hi!" and a "How are ya?" to the girls.

"Fine, 'Et tu?" (Julius Caesar) they yelled back to the brute.

He walked over to see them. "This is my home of love; if I have ranged, like him that travels, I return again." (Sonnet 109)

"Are you going to school this fall?"

"Nope. You'd have to say that 'I am slow of study.'" (A Midsummer Night's Dream) But I am just 'as merry as the day is long.'" (Much Ado About Nothing) Hey, you gals, wanna see my new car? It's a 'vette."

"Awl-right! 'The game is up.' (Cymbeline) 'Let us make an honorable retreat.'" (As You Like It)

They left, and the freshman returned with the food. Discovering what had happened, he mumbled to himself, "O, what a rogue and peasant slave am I." (Hamlet)

That, my good strangers, is "the long and short of it." (The Merry Wives of Windsor)

Dear Editors:

What is so . . . heartwarming as the new look for the Northwest Missourian? Something there is in man that needs inspiration, something there is that looks to the sun for light. That is why students turn to your pages eagerly, proudly. That is why it is easy to find intent expressions on the faces of those who read its eight solid pages. That is why I must say, gratefully, BRAVO! Our campus needs the vitality of the new Northwest Missourian. Thank you for bringing it to us.

Habla Vd. una Lengua Extranjera?

The recent discussions of the Viet Nam problem, in addition to broadening students' knowledge of the Viet Nam situation, revealed a basic weakness in the United States' foreign policy — a lack of empathy.

The United States is not likely to succeed in its diplomatic relations with Viet Nam, or with any other country, until the government realizes that other people of the world feel, think, and act differently from Americans. To understand the culture and psychology of a foreign country, one must ultimately learn the language of that country.

Henri Peyre, chairman of the department of romantic languages at Yale University, maintains that language is "the mirror and the vehicle" of a country's culture.

Unless the United States is able to develop a keen sense of international empathy through the promotion of foreign language study, our diplomatic relations with other countries will continue to weaken.

Apparently the United States is depending too heavily on pecuniary means to establish good - will with foreign countries. Since the birth of foreign-aid, the U. S. has dispensed to foreign countries over 100 billion dollars — much of which, for practical purposes, has been wasted.

Some of the projects financed by aid money questionably spent include a fifteen-mile six-lane highway in Portugal joining Lisbon and Estoril — a gambling resort, four mills built in Korea in areas where wheat was not grown, a village constructed in Italy where no one wanted to live, a road in Iran that led to nowhere, a medical station in Viet Nam used for a hog-ched.

Even in instances where foreign-aid has been wisely spent, friendship and gratitude was not necessarily attained through the monetary assistance. In France, for example, only four per cent of the French people who participated in a poll agreed that the Marshall Plan (post-war foreign-aid to France) was influential in France's recovery after the war. Indo-China received over one billion U. S. dollars, then turned communist.

Since 100 billion dollars has not established favorable international relations for the United States, would it not appear that foreign countries do not simply desire a cashier's check which an interpreter explains is a gift from the Great Society?

Could it not be that countries want friendship based on understanding, and perhaps specialized assistance which the U. S. cannot give unless she has foreign service officers who are fluent in foreign languages and can associate themselves with the real needs and desires of the people?

Competence in at least one foreign language has always been theroretically required of a foreign service officer; however, the difficulty in obtaining adequately trained personnel has led to a relaxation of the qualifications.

The shortage of Americans who are trained in foreign languages is understandable when one realizes that over one-half of our public schools offer instruction in foreign languages according to Dr. Theodor Huebener, director of foreign languages in the schools New York City.

Of the public schools that have foreign language departments, very few offer courses in Chinese, a member of the Sino-Tibetan family of languages which includes over one-fourth of the human race. Pertaining to the Viet Nam problem, the United States neglect of the Chinese language is quite significant, since approximately 50 per cent of the words in the Vietnamese language are borrowed from the Chinese.

In the present world of unrest, distrust, and misunderstanding, the importance of language in international relations must be recognized as emphasized if the United States is to fulfill her destiny as a world leader and promoter of good-will and international empathy. Dr. Huebener has concluded that "knowledge of a foreign language is not a cultural luxury; it is a practical necessity . . . for cultural exchange, for international understanding, for peace."

The Path of Knowledge

A Step in the Right Direction

The Viet Nam teach-in (termed a "seminar") was not an unqualified success.

The opening statements were unduly long and arduous. There was no excitement of a true debate. The questions asked from the floor lacked searching depth.

The fact that it occurred is an important step in creating the opportunity for a truly complete educational experience.

The gratifying size of the crowd was due in part to the topical nature of the subject, the advance publicity gained through similar sessions on other campuses, and, perhaps, simply the novelty of something new.

On the other hand, the departure of most of the audience before some of the most exciting statements were made was unfortunate.

Those few who sat through the entire three and three quarters hours came away with some important information — a brief, but comprehensive background on one of the most urgent topics of current history; example of divergent views of the U. S. State Department and the educational community; and, perhaps most importantly, a affirmation that public criticism can reach the government and at least stimulate defense of its position.

Several suggestions concerning future sessions of this type are apparent:

— Assure greater control over the participants in the debate, especially with an eye toward limiting the time of opening statements.

— Investigate each speaker more closely and make sure that those who profess opposing views have a complete command of the facts of the position.

— Give the audience an opportunity for the best possible participation. Leave on a list or two in the auditorium those who wish to take notes may do so.

— Arrange ahead of time for late dorm closing hours.

But above all, more seminars of this type must be held.

When the background of academic study is viewed through the perspective of current events, education takes on a new and necessary dimension.

Greetings From Julia Lam

Coed From Hong Kong Misses Campus

Dear President Foster, the Faculty and Friends at MSC,

This morning when I was riding back from St. Benedict's College to Mount Saint Scholastica, I noticed that some of the trees have turned red. Nodding and dancing in the wind, they seemed to be sending me a message. "Do you remember the trees in Northwest Missouri?"

How I wish I could come to see the college in autumn—just to pick up a red fallen leaf, to hold it with both of my palms and ponder how green it used to be in the summer. I know I will not hear the twittering of the birds, but there will be the soft autumn breeze, caressing me gently, singing at my ears the many happy memories.

I want to see the pond, to throw a tiny pebble into it and watch the ripples. I long to stroll slowly down the bridge—There are so many things I want to do there.

Have I really become so much attached to the place? No, it is not the place that I miss so much, for no matter how lovely a place is, it is but dead and cold. Only the kind, the considerate, the helpful can warm it up and beautify it, making it a fit habitation for one another.

This is the kind of people I encountered in the summer. How can I forget the cheerful, eager faces—so ready to share with me what they have. I am ashamed that I have so little to give, but there is one thing I do want you to know; that is, I give my friendship with all sincerity.

My summer in the college was such a wonderful experience that I must tell you that I did appreciate all that you have done for me. I shall treasure all your kindness in my heart, where there is ever room for lovely things.

I must not forget a single bit of them, so that, some day when I shall get back to my people, I can share with them the light and warmth the people of the United States have so generously shared with me. I shall tell them about the land where it is warm enough for roses to bloom in the winter—the roses that need to be cultivated with soil of the heart.

I keep you all in my daily prayers that the Lord may keep you, guide and bless you in all your endeavor.

Your Chinese friend,
Julia, Kit Ling, Lam

advisor for home economics majors on this campus.

The girls' duties vary from managing the food to acting as host and hostess. Each student is responsible for one position for five or six days and then changes to a different assignment. The cycle continues for the remainder of the 28 days.

Perhaps one of the most important posts is food manager. Her job deals with planning, preparing, and serving three meals daily. Working as her aid, another girl sets the table, chooses the table service, and helps the manager prepare the food.

The hostess for the period arranges the centerpiece for the table, assists in conversation at meals, organizes group activities, invites guests to the house, and manages the entertainment.

Another valuable post is held by the housekeeper, who cares for the household furniture. The host and laundress duties are done by the fifth member. The host presides at the table, assists the hostess in directing conversation, and asks the blessing. The laundress is in charge of the house washing and ironing.

No problems have arisen adjusting to the new surroundings and people, Miss Miller proudly stated. This could be in part, the result of the fact that the girls act maturely and respect the rights of others. She added.

STROLLER

• The Stroller has been a round MSC for so many years he has finally returned as a ghost. He seems to be having as much trouble adding up honor points as some other MSC students. Records show that he has never been able to earn his sheepskin.

• Do you know who Rolly Stallman, Des Moines; Roberta Crockett, St. Joseph; Dennis Athen, Columbia; Tammy Freel, Des Moines, and Nancy Williams, Lyton, Ia., are? They are pictured in the pictures of the freshman reception and back-to-school dance in the Sept. 24 edition of the MISSOURIAN. Dennis identified them. Evidently he was a Bearcat on the prowl.

• Whoops! Sometimes it just doesn't pay to go to class early or to keep a class late, as the case may be. Several MSC girls discovered this when they arrived at their lifesaving class before a swimming class had finished.

• MSC Drivers shouldn't have any problem obeying the new traffic safety law which establishes a minimum speed limit of 40 miles per hour on interstate highways in Missouri. The Stroller hopes no one fails on another innovation, the chemical breath test.

—Cautions Go to everyone against accepting food from a dark-haired sophomore girl. When mixing brownies, she let part of the mixer fall into the batter. A week later, while making cookies, she added Castoria instead of vanilla.

• Solved is the case of the missing line in the Fields Clothing ad in the last issue of the Missourian.

The Stroller in his best sleuthing style, found the slug line with the name of junior athlete Allen Van Dyke somewhere between the melting pot and the makeup table at the print shop. Van Dyke, a transferee from the Centerville, Ia., Junior College, is a top prospect for Coach Richard Buckridge's basketball team.

• Rumor has it that a new instructor in the physics department is named Waterloo. Many of his students met him, to their dismay, on a recent test.

Graduate Fellowships Offered by Foundation

A total of 1,000 fellowships for first year graduate study in the coming school year are available from the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation, according to George Hinshaw, campus representative of the foundation.

To be a candidate, a student must be nominated by a faculty member. The fellowships primarily are granted to candidates in the humanities and social sciences. Science and mathematics majors who intend to teach may be nominated, but, if US citizens, must apply simultaneously for a National Science Foundation Fellowship and must accept that award if it is offered.

Faculty members who would like to nominate students with high scholastic and leadership records must do so by Oct. 31, sending them to the regional chairman, Professor Walter F. Wright, 309 Burnett Hall, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Neb., or to Mr. Hinshaw.

Upperclassmen To Help Check Compositions

Sixteen upperclassmen, almost twice as many as ever before, who are interested in gaining experience as well as extra cash, have been accepted as readers in the English Department, according to Dr. Frank Grube, department head.

These jobs, open exclusively to students who maintained a high average in freshman English, involve marking freshman themes for English instructors. The present wage is 75 cents an hour.

Catching grammatical errors as a part-time profession differs considerably from other types of campus employment, because a student checks a set of papers at one time instead of working for one or two hours a day as most jobs require. As a department assistant, students who are going into the teaching profession learn how to evaluate papers.

Students approved for this work are Lynne Mylan, Judy Brown, Ren Murawski, Diana Wiley, Benton Calkins, Dixie Eddleman, Marjorie Hitchcock, Joyce Richmond, P. D. Fields, Kack Miller, Ruth Kennedy, Mary Kennedy, Judith A. Hunt, Lynette Dennis, David Shestak and Rosemary Tauchin.

Drama Club President Announces Meetings

Ruth Martin, president of the Drama Club, has announced a tentative schedule for the club's first semester meetings.

On Oct. 13, the group had a tour of the new Olive DeLuce Fine Arts Building. On Oct. 27 and Dec. 8 the club will have regular meetings, and on Nov. 18 members will have a get-acquainted party.

CONDUCTING A TOUR of the new Olive DeLuce Fine Arts Building is Dave Taylor, Nancy Harvey, Judy Cram, and Sandy Fry show interest in the private study room.

Music Division Has Special Facilities In New De Luce Fine Arts Building

The Division of Music, which annually presents from 30 to 40 musical programs, will be using the Charles Johnson Theater in the new De Luce Fine Arts Building as a site for its programs.

Student recitals, faculty recitals, programs and concerts of the school music groups, as well as operas and musical comedy productions, will be presented in the new theater, Dr. John Smay, department chairman, said. Other first floor facilities include rooms for theory classes, choir rehearsals, and large instrumental rehearsals. There are also two studios, a faculty conference room, a music office and studio, and a storage room for choral and instrumental music.

Storage rooms are provided in the basement for school instruments, robes, and uniforms. An instrument repair room, and rooms for small ensemble rehearsals and general storage are also found on the basement floor. Lockers located on the basement and first floors are available for all music majors and minors.

A general classroom, seven teaching studios, and twenty-four practice rooms are located on the second floor. A student study room, equipped with a 12-place headphone listening center, having two recording turntables and one tape-deck, study tables, and music dictionaries and encyclopedias, is provided on that floor for music students.

Grade Classes Study Safety, Work Skills

Second grade students have been working on a safety unit, using various bulletin boards displayed throughout the room.

Sally Teitz, Nancy Kotts, Cheryl Felt, Peggy Link, and Betty McCloney are student teaching in this grade this semester, working under the supervision of Mrs. Ruth Lamar.

Bearcats to Open MIAA Competition Against Mules

Northwest State will open its MIAA Conference football campaign Saturday against the Warrensburg Mules.

The Bearcats will be trying to get back in the winning column after being upset by Emporia State 28-27 Saturday afternoon at Emporia.

With 27 lettermen returning this year, the host Warrensburg squad is trying to improve on its '64 season record of 1-8-0. Last year Maryville whipped the Mules, 35-0.

Key players in the Warrensburg attack are Keith Browne, 6-5 end; quarterback John Repp; halfbacks Adolphus Mooney, a 220-pound pile-driver, Ford Frederickson and Bob Park, and fullback Larry Warren. The Mules have posted a 1-2-1 record in games played this season.

Ed Wiskoski and Ed Byron, two top-notch defensive linemen, were injured in the Emporia game and are doubtful starters for Saturday's game.

Only Kirksville and Maryville were unbeaten in the MIAA until the Emporia game last week. The Bearcats defeated highly ranked William Jewell, 14-7. Jim Blankenship had a busy night at halfback as he picked up 109 yards in 23 carries. Quarterback Leo Papas teamed with Bob Albanese to set up several Bearcat scoring drives. Papas completed 10 of 20 passes.

Maryville's two touchdowns came on runs by Mike Peterson and fullback Mike Crank. The Bearcat defense turned in a remarkable performance by holding William Jewell to only 29 yards rushing.

The Bearcats suffered their first loss of the season as Emporia jumped off to a 14-0 lead and went on to edge the Bearcats in the last quarter.

Two of Maryville's touchdowns came on passes from Leo Papas to end Bob Albanese, ranked as one of the top 10 small college pass receivers in the nation. Maryville hit pay dirt for the second time as Joe Spinello recovered a fumble, and Papas passed to Mike Peterson.

Mike Thompson put Maryville ahead with a seven-yard sprint before Emporia scored the clinching touchdown with about two minutes left in the game.

Football Activities Mark Beginning Of Intramurals

With the kick-off of the intramural football season, Sept. 20, the fall intramural and recreational activities got into full swing.

The intramural program, under the direction of the Senate intramural council, includes four sports besides football. Tennis, wrestling, swimming, and tug-o-war round out an agenda that is open to all men students.

Two major changes have been made in the football program. The game has been changed from touch to flag football, and the games are played under the lights on the baseball field, each evening Monday through Friday.

Lamkin Gymnasium is open 6:30 to 9:30 Monday through Friday, and 1:00 to 9:30 on Saturday for basketball, badminton, tennis, track, and weight lifting. Equipment may be checked out by leaving some security at the equipment room.

The pool is open 7:00 to 9:30 Monday, Wednesday, and Friday for both men and women.

Bearcats of the Week

Eleven men work as a team to win football games, but some players deserve special commendation for their offensive and defensive efforts to MSC team accomplishment.

Leon Muff, a 6-2, 215-pound freshman, played an outstanding game at offensive end against the Emporia, Kas., Hornets. Twice Nebraskan All-Stater, Muff has scored two

Leon Muff

TD's. A member of the National Honor Society at his Crete, Neb., high school, Muff plans to study physical therapy at MSC.

Mickey Thompson

Although benched by an injury in the season's first three games, Mickey Thompson returned to action in a brilliant debut as offensive back against Emporia. The 6-1, 200-pound junior scored the lead-taking touchdown in the third quarter against the Hornets. Tackled on the 3-yard line, Thompson pulled the tackler with him across the goal line.

Until he was hurt, Ed Wiskoski starred on defense for the Cats. Playing his freshman year at Washburn University, Wiskoski leads the MSC defensive platoon with 15 tackles and 2 assists. The 6-3, 230-pounder was graduated from St. Joseph Central high school.

Ed Wiskoski

Voted the MSC outstanding defensive player last season, Mike Peterson played his upperior game Saturday. He led the 'Cats in rushing with 70 yards in 14 carries and scored a touchdown. Peterson was also the defensive back in the William Jewell game.

tee drops a group from a category, however, the organization is still eligible to run a candidate. If an organization is disqualified because of failure to appear for Variety Show skit practice, it will disqualify itself.

Freshman Gridsters To Host Peru Team

The Maryville freshman football squad will be seeking its first victory Monday when they battle Peru, Neb., State on Rickenbrode Field.

The young Bearcats, coached by Lewis Dyche, have lost their first three games. They gave the tough Kirksville frosh a battle before going down 20-6 in the first game. Maryville's next two losses came against Tarkio and William Jewell.

Leading the Maryville freshman attack are linebacker Rick McDermott, and backs Mike Hughes and John Fairbanks. The quarterback duties are shared by Barry Monaghan and Mike Holmes.

Senate Clarifies Rule About Homecoming

The Student Senate has clarified one of the Homecoming participation rules, according to Rosanne Bartlett, secretary.

If an MSC organization enters all three divisions of Homecoming and then withdraws from one division, it will be disqualified from running a queen candidate.

Wrestlers Begin New Season

Ranking eighth in small college wrestling throughout the nation last year, MSC grapplers have commenced practicing in order to maintain or better their national standing.

Coached by Jerry Landwer and Gail Collins, 65 boys are working out twice a week and participating in a weight training program. Eight lettermen are returning, including co-captains Harvey Hallum, a senior from Tulsa, Okla., and Allan Packer, a senior from Chenango Forks, N. Y. Some wrestlers will join the squad after the football season ends.

Paul Stehman, a 137-pound letter winner last year, has transferred to another school. This loss, as well as that of four outstanding freshmen who had applied but did not enroll, has weakened the Bearcats in several weight classes, especially 137, 160, 177, and heavy-weight. Any boys interested in these positions should see one of the coaches in Room 101 in Lamkin Gymnasium.

Preceding their first competition on Dec. 4 in the Graceland, Ia., tournament, the matmen will participate in a series of wrestle-offs. In daily wrestle-offs Nov. 1 through Nov. 12, wrestlers in each weight class will compete to determine the top man in each class. On Nov. 13 as a climax for the NWMS annual wrestling clinic, the number-one varsity men will wrestle the number-one freshmen.

Coaches Landwer and Collins have added the University of Minnesota, State College of Iowa, and Southern Illinois University to the schedule, which also includes several Big Eight schools.

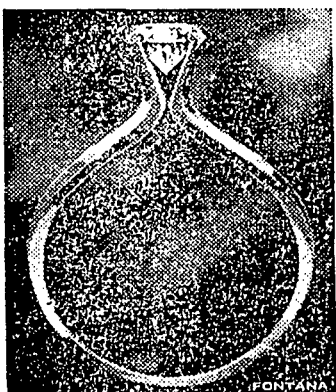

Men Help Hospital

Last week the Men's Residence Halls, a total of 937 students, donated $1,000 to the St. Francis Hospital Building Fund. This averaged out to be over a dollar a student, which was a great accomplishment.
